Statement and Statistics

Dean John Mogulescu

In 2003, the Board of Trustees of the City University of New York created the CUNY School of Professional Studies (CUNY SPS) with the purpose of meeting the educational needs of working adults, organizations, and employers. Since then, CUNY SPS has developed into a well-established school serving New York City by providing innovative and academically rigorous programs of study designed to address new or unmet needs. Drawing on the University’s faculty as well as on leading industry practitioners citywide, the school’s degrees, certificate programs, and professional development courses provide opportunities for job mobility, civic participation, and personal growth.

Since 2006, CUNY SPS has launched 23 degrees—12 bachelor’s degrees (10 online) and 11 master’s degrees (seven online), and more programs are currently in development.

The school currently offers the following degree programs:
- Bachelor of Science degree in Business (online)
- Bachelor of Arts degree in Communication and Media (online)
- Bachelor of Arts degree in Disability Studies (online)
- Bachelor of Science degree in Health Information Management (online)
