

Computer Science Education Is Coming to NYC Public Schools! Take Online Specialized Coursework in STEM Education

TEACHERS:

- Make yourself more marketable through coursework in computer science designed expressly for educators
- Take CSC 711: An Introduction to Computational Thinking through the College of Staten Island this summer
- Develop skills required to solve problems in computer science as well as in all school subjects

COURSE

- Summer 2016: CSC 711: An Introduction to Computational Thinking For Teachers
- This is a three-credit course that will be offered fully online for 4 weeks
- Course begins on June 29th

COURSE DETAILS

This course will allow teachers to learn how to:

- Make apps for their content area using MIT's APP Inventor
- Create animated stories for their content area using SCRATCH
- Teach students to create their own animated stories and apps
- Build their own Web page

THE SUMMER 2016 COURSE STARTS JUNE 29TH – APPLY TODAY!

- Complete a visiting student application: <http://www.csi.cuny.edu/admissions/grad/gradvisit.pdf>.
- Please indicate the course name: CSC 711: An Introduction to Computational Thinking for Teachers.

QUESTIONS?

Contact the Office of Recruitment and Admissions at graduateadmissions@csi.cuny.edu or 718.982.2019 with all questions regarding the application process. Additional questions can be directed to Diane Brescia at diane.brescia@csi.cuny.edu or 718.982.3877.